

AUXILIARY STUDENT ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

Ayush Ray is a high honours graduate of Halifax West High School. He has completed his undergraduate degree at Dalhousie University, is currently working on his Masters at UNBSJ, and will be commencing his Doctorate at the Dalhousie School of Medicine New Brunswick in 2017. Described as bright, dedicated and hard-working, his scholastic excellence has continued throughout his entire education, remaining consistently on the Dean's list.

Recipients of the student achievement awards have high academic achievement, future goals, interpersonal and organizational skills, dedication to a chosen field of study in healthcare, and well roundedness with a genuine desire to do well for others and make a difference in their lives. Ayush embodies each of these behaviours.

With too many volunteer commitments to list, including within hospitals, YMCAs and other community groups, Ayush truly wishes to make an impact on people's lives through continued dedication to volunteerism.

In addition to his passion for health care, Ayush is primarily dedicated to community groups assisting immigrants and refugees.

With a goal of making patients and their families feel a bit more at ease through his efforts, Ayush is a creditworthy recipient of the SJRH Auxiliary Student Achievement Award for 2017.

Presented by the Board of Directors, Saint John Regional Hospital Auxiliary, Inc.

June 15, 2017

AUXILIARY STUDENT ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

Amy (EunBin) Chang is a new honors graduate of Kennebecasis Valley High School. With plans to attend the University of Waterloo, with a major in medicinal chemistry, it is certain that she will continue with her scholastic excellence. She has aspirations of studying and discovering medicines to improve future health care. She is described as having a solid work ethic, a positive and outgoing personality, as well as a strong willingness to help others.

Recipients of the student achievement awards have high academic achievement, future goals, interpersonal and organizational skills, dedication to a chosen field of study in healthcare, and well roundedness with a genuine desire to do well for others and make a difference in their lives. Amy perfectly epitomises these behaviours.

Amy is extensively involved in the community. She volunteers within the SJRH, with school activities, such as the renaissance and recycling clubs, at the KV library, Korean Language School, YMCA, and the First Nation Bible Camp.

Outside of her volunteerism, Amy is involved in the ski team, the recycling team, arts, yearbook and has an interest in news. Balancing all of these commitments, along with a part-time job, she truly exemplifies a well-rounded young individual and is thus an extremely commendable recipient of the SJRH Auxiliary Student Achievement Award for 2017.

Presented by the Board of Directors, Saint John Regional Hospital Auxiliary, Inc.

June 15, 2017

AUXILIARY STUDENT ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

Leanne Davis is an honors graduate of Saint Malachy's Memorial High School. She has graduated from UNBSJ with a Bachelor of Science and is currently pursuing her Master of Arts in experimental psychology. In all of her studies, she continues to excel and remain on the Dean's list. She is described as having exceptional drive and a genuine desire to do well for others and make a difference in their lives.

Recipients of the student achievement awards have high academic achievement, future goals, interpersonal and organizational skills, dedication to a chosen field of study in healthcare, and well roundedness with a genuine desire to do well for others and make a difference in their lives. Leanne clearly exemplifies all of these traits.

In addition to her persistent pursuit of psychology and research, Leanne is a tireless volunteer within the hospital and amongst other volunteer organizations. She also works part-time and is involved in sports, peer mentoring and other student activities within her school.

Leanne has far surpassed our expectations for such a young individual and has already made great strides in her pursuit of a career in health research.

Her commitment to excellence in academics, leadership and service make her an extremely worthy recipient of the SJRH Auxiliary Student Achievement Award for 2017.

Presented by the Board of Directors, Saint John Regional Hospital Auxiliary, Inc.

June 15, 2017

AUXILIARY STUDENT ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

Megan Crawford is a graduate of Saint Malachy's Memorial High School and has just completed her first year at UNB. With ultimate dreams of following in her family's footsteps and becoming a nurse, Megan is described as professional, patient, empathetic and as having a positive approach to the care she provides.

Megan is no stranger to hard work and continues to "show a great deal of heart and dedication in both her studies and in her work."

Recipients of the student achievement awards have academic achievement, future goals, interpersonal and organizational skills, dedication to a chosen field of study in healthcare, and well roundedness with a genuine desire to do well for others and make a difference in their lives. Megan represents these traits in everything she does.

Meghan is a dedicated volunteer within the Saint John Regional Hospital, St. Joseph's Hospital and within her school. Meanwhile, in addition to her volunteerism and part-time jobs, she actively participates in various sports and book clubs.

With a dream of taking care of others, Megan is a commendable recipient of the SJRH Auxiliary Student Achievement Award for 2017.

Presented by the Board of Directors, Saint John Regional Hospital Auxiliary, Inc.

June 15, 2017